

No Love Lost...

By Kathy Keats, The Agility Coach

This set of exercises is inspired by the deciding challenge in the European Open final. In the first exercise, #6 to #7 was a dilemma for most handlers. Going between #6 and #7 was extremely risky as the spacing was so tight that a dog barely fit between the jumps. Turning the dog right at #6 and coming around the long way to #7 was obviously the longer but safer path. What would you do?

You will also get lots of chances to work on your wraps, push behinds, and even some blind crosses if you are so inclined—especially those of you who want to try a wrap to a blind cross, known variously as the “K turn” or Ketschker turn.
