Trainer's Forum

Thinking about changing instructors? This month our trainers discuss how to assess available training facilities and trainers, and outline some methods for choosing both to best meet your team's needs. By Brenna Fender

Foundation Fundamentals: The Art of Zen Stays

Whether you're training a young dog or a dog with a start-line problem, you can teach him to stay in a balanced position without moving or even shifting his weight. By Moe Strenfel

When Pigs Fly: The Ins and Outs of Serpentine, Part 1

There are many ways to handle serpentine and all of them work very well, if you train them properly. But what method will be most intuitive for your Pigs Fly dog? By Jane Killion

33 Handling Your Dog in Awesome Style, Part 15: More Specialized Handling Situations

This month the author discusses several specialized handling situations, layering and shaping, and how to handle these situations while continuing to maintain consistency in the APHS system. By Linda Mecklenburg

59 Can You Handle It?

Test your skills on a sequence from the 2009 USDAA Grand Prix Qualifier run in San Diego, California. By Ann Croft

63 Shelter Champs: Vinny

While many competitors dream of earning titles, animal shelters continue to house dogs that were relinquished because they are too energetic, too smart, or too busy for most pet homes. Many of these dogs are great agility prospects. This month, meet Vinny. By Lisa Barrett

67 Comparing the Derrett and Mecklenburg Handling Systems, Part 5: Rear Crosses

This month we'll compare the differences and similarities in the use of the rear cross in both systems. By the Clean Run Staff

79 Changing Consequences: The Ups and Downs of Energy

Overstimulated dogs are not ready for active agility training. Whether they react to stimulation by being too high or too low (stressed), these dogs need time to adapt. We can support the adaptation process by practicing stationary behaviors. By Jenny Ruth Yasi
