THE MAGAZINE FOR DOG AGILITY ENTHUSIASTS

AUGUST 09 VOLUME 15 NUMBER 8

Trainer's Forum

Does your dog take a “bug on the windshield” approach to the up contact on the A-frame and hit it with a splat? Trainers discuss some solutions for helping a dog mount the A-frame with less impact to reduce the potential for injury. By Brenna Fender

When the Magic Is Missing: Teaching a Class Divided by Lack of Obstacle Skills

As an agility instructor, you cannot let individual deficiencies in obstacle performance rule the class flow. Here are some tricks for when a dog cannot perform a particular obstacle in class. By Sandy Rogers

The Perfect Trial

The perfect trial—the one where every run is clean, fast, and smooth. Given the average club and trial can't guarantee either you or your dog quite that spectacular a weekend, what does make a trial a great experience? By Deb Eldredge DVM

Cover

32 Drills for Footwork, Balance, and Hand-eye Coordination
Many agility handlers have very little background in any sport requiring eye-hand or eye-foot coordination and often may have no sports background at all. Here are some drills to help develop these skills. By Webb Anderson

Features

5 Editorializing: The “Good Ole” Days Aren't Really Gone

Have the “good ole” days of agility passed us by? Or is agility actually the same as it was when we started—at least in the most important ways? By Trisha Stall

15 Handling Your Dog in Awesome Style, Part 16: Course Handling

In the final installment of Linda Mecklenburg's series of handling articles, she dissects some courses and shows us how to put her Awesome Paws Handling System to work in real life. By Linda Mecklenburg

24 Tricks for Agility: Jumping Through Hoops and Through Arms

Having the dog jump through your arms is a fun way for the dog to warm up and focus on you before a run. No props are required, so you can use it wherever there is a soft surface for the dog to land on. By Sassie Joiris

28 Can You Handle It?

This month we'll explore challenges in sequences distilled from the 2009 AKC Nationals Challenger course. By Marquand Cheek

39 When Pigs Fly: The Ins and Outs of Serpentine, Part 2

Now that you know what a serpentine is and how you can handle serpentine, let's look at training your dog to understand your serpentine cues. By Jane Killion

46 Canine Orthopedic Devices

Orthoses, prostheses, and other assistive devices are an emerging technology that can aid in the well-being of canine patients. These devices are used to either correct or accommodate the affected limb following trauma or surgical intervention, and may be used as temporary or permanent modes of treatment. By Sherman O. Canapp Jr., DVM, MS, CCRT, Diplomate ACVS

51 Box Drills with C-shaped Tunnels

Learn how to teach motion cues to your dog at tunnel exits and try some of the author's favorite handling drills with a C-shaped tunnel to hone your skills. By Jen Pinder
