THE MAGAZINE FOR DOG AGILITY ENTHUSIASTS

JANUARY 10 VOLUME 16 NUMBER 1

Choosing a Video Camera for Filming Agility

Video is a valuable tool for competitors of all levels. But choosing a camera can be a nightmare unless you identify your needs and understand the types of cameras available so that you can make appropriate comparisons while shopping. By Anne Popper

Foundation Fundamentals: Teeter Preparation Exercises and Games

The teeter is an obstacle that can cause problems for many dogs. To prepare your dog for this challenge and avoid problems, there are many games and exercises you can train long before your teammate sees an actual teeter. By Moe Strenfel

Turning Agility Goals into Reality

From qualifying for Nationals to helping your dog overcome teeter fear, we all have long- and short-term goals we would like to achieve. Too often these ambitions are forgotten as life becomes busy. With a little planning, setting goals can provide direction and purpose to your training sessions. By JoAnna Lou

13 Tuning Up Your Dog's Jumping for Trials

Here's a three-step plan to tune up your dog for an important trial day and have some fun as well. An appropriate tune-up regimen allows the dog to stay in top form and to happily provide those moments of jumping brilliance when it counts most. By Susan Salo

22 A-frame Contact Behaviors and Joint Stress

Does a two-on/two-off contact place more stress on the dog's joints than other methods? In a first-of-its-kind study, the author examines joint angles and body movement on the A-frame descent using Dartfish software. By Dr. Deborah Gross Saunders

Features

5 Editorializing: USDAA Weave Pole Spacing

With the growing sentiment among competitors for 24"-spaced poles and the body of evidence showing less physical stress on the dogs, it has been a bit puzzling as to why the USDAA board thinks staying with 20" to 22" spacing is better. By Sue Fregien

29 How to Ruin a Great Training Tool in 2 Easy Steps or How to Use Food Toys Properly

The Tug-N-Treat and other food toys are powerful training tools when used properly. Learn how to avoid the potential pitfalls of food toys and actually get your dog to play. By Nancy Gyes

41 Can You Handle It?

Test your skills on a sequence from a 2009 USDAA Southwest Regional Grand Prix course designed by Sharon Wirant. By Ann Croft

48 Shelter Champs: Ollie

While many competitors dream of earning titles, animal shelters continue to house dogs that were relinquished because they are too energetic, too smart, or too busy for most pet homes. Many of these dogs are great agility prospects. This month, meet Ollie. By Lisa Barrett

53 Power Paws Drills: European Style

In this month's drills you'll get multiple opportunities to practice finding the back of the jump and to try some interesting lead-outs. Why practice these European-style challenges? Judges at U.S. trials are beginning to use elements from European courses. By Nancy Gyes

60 Consequences, Schmonsequences: Understanding Reinforcers and Punishers

Every training method uses the same fundamental technique: the dog does a behavior, and there is a consequence for it. Depending on how the dog feels about that consequence, the behavior may increase (be reinforced) or decrease (be punished) as a result. By Jane Killian

69 In Cider: Why My Dog Didn't Q

There are lots of reasons why a team doesn't qualify. Are any of them the dog's fault? By Bill Gates

73 National Velvet at the AKC Agility Invitational

Karen and Riley's journey to the AKC Agility Invitational reminds us that with enough practice, patience, and perseverance, any team can realize their agility dreams. By Karen Schelling
