19 100 Easy At-Home Agility Hacks

So, you want to proof your agility dog, but you don't have the space or cash for a teeter, tunnel, and A-frame? You're not alone. Here are some creative ways you can use your living space for training.

By Lisa Lanser Rose

33 Beginning Sequencing with Wing Wraps

Once your training on individual obstacles is done, it's time to start sequencing! Here we'll discuss introducing wing wraps into sequences as well as provide many sequences to try on your own. By Jo Sermon

38 Does Your Dog Have the Skills Needed for Good Start-Line Stays & Releases?

The start line is more than having the dog hold a stationary position until you release him. It consists of everything leading up to that moment and directly after the moment of release. By Tammy Moody

43 Practically Training: Lead-Outs, Part 2

If you get confused about where to stand and what to do when you lead out, you are not alone—not by a long shot. If lead-outs give you a headache, this article is for you. By Sandy Rogers

4 Tip of the Month – Keep your Treat & Train remote where it's always easy to find. By Marcy Rauch

5 Editorializing: Who Do You Want to Be? – We tend to copy the company we keep, so let's look for those whose attitudes we admire and work to be just a little more like them. It's not all that hard, but it does require that we be aware of our behavior and make choices that lead toward our goal. By Brenna Fender

6 Making a Toy Irresistible to Your Dog So You Can Tug –

Activating a toy is the process of animating it, so your dog becomes interested in engaging and gripping it. Every dog's "toy activation response" level is different; for some minimal effort is required, while for others, you will have to work a little harder. By Craig Ogilvie

9 Backyard Dogs – Habits. Everyone has them and that extends to course design! Especially when you train alone, you need to find creative ways to not do what you always do. Here's a fun trick to keep things fresh. By Dudley Shumate

11 Any Dog Can Have Awesome Contacts from a Distance: Part 4 – Establishing fast, independent, and solid stopped contacts when you're at a distance from your dog is a many-faceted project. However, when approached methodically, pretty much any dog can have awesome results. By Stacy Winkler

17 A Wish Is Not a Goal – If you're reading Clean Run, you have agility goals. But are your goals written down and reviewed regularly? Do you have a system to capture feedback? How do you know you're on track to achieve your goals? By Julie Bacon

22 The Judges Debriefing – A judge breaks down a course designed for a CPE trial in Florida. By Cindy Deak

24 Backyard Mastery: Turning the "Wrong" Way – Making simple changes can really increase the difficulty of the drills you're practicing and help you put together multiple handling moves. By Steve Schwarz

27 Power Paws Drills: Stick the Zones – This is a great setup for working on all sorts of contact challenges as well as tunnel to tunnel and some handler path restrictions. By Nancy Gyes

41 The 25% Solution: Sequences for Small Spaces – This month's exercises allow you to practice post turns, front crosses, serpentines, backsides, and weave poles going into "nothing." By John Reid
